The Nickel Plate Cutting Rates.

A meeting of the Central Passenger committee was held at Columbus to-day, for the purpose of devising means to avoid a threatened general demoralization growing out of a strained situation at Clyde, Ohio. The trouble all arises out of the fact that the Nickel Plate, while a sort of an honorary member, is not bound by the penalty clauses of the Central Committee agreement. Either the Nickel plate can come into the Central Passenger committee and subscribe to the penalty clause or the other roads can begin hostile proceedings all along the line of the Nickel Plate to the end that it may ultimately be driven into the fold.

DEATH!

Boiler Mud Drums Explode.

Terribly Scalding Some Fourteen Mill Hands.

Their Bodies Scattered About the Dilapidated Factory Charred and Burned.

FRIGHTFUL CASUALTY.

The Battery of a Mill Explodes With Force.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

PITTSBURG, Oct. 2.—The battery of boilers in Clark & Co.'s solar iron works exploded this morning, shortly after three o'clock, injuring seventeen persons, three fatally.

The night turn had just been relieved by the day turn. The mud drum of the boilers had exploded and escaping steam scalded seventeen men. A closer investigation showed that of this number fourteen were badly burned and three fatally scalded. The names of the fatally injured are as follows:

Frank Martin.

James Cattoe.

Frank Murray.

The injured were found lying in all positions, and some were so far away from the battery that it seemed impossible they could have been injured by the explosion. The interior of the finishing mill presented a terrible sight of desolation. The mud drum lay lengthwise under all six boilers. It was the end of this which blew out. The boilers were unseated, two tilted back in the rear and the whole wall of masonry was moved outward. Large stacks of hoopiron were blown all over the mill and machines were upset. Mr. Powers, chief engineer, says the boilers and mud drum were inspected by the Boiler insurance company two months ago and were then pronounced safe. He was certain they were all right when he left last night and could only account for the explosion on the ground that the iron in the mud drum was too weak to stand the pressure to which it was subjected.

Two of the victims of Cattoe and Murray have died at the West Penn hospital. Three or four others are not expected to recover. The explosion was caused by the mud eating through the coating of the mud-drum.

NISSA, Oct. 2.—A meeting of the Skuptes-China yesterday has resulted in Servia demanding an extension of territory. The populace are clamoring for the annexation of Macedonia. BI-FAILURES.

New York Speculators go Under.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

New York, Oct. 2.—The firm of Wm. Heath & Co., composed of Wm. Heath, Charles E. Quincy and Thomas E. Davis, failed to-day. Mr. Heath has been a prominent person on Wall street for about twenty years. Mr. Henry M. Smith, about whom rumors of financial trouble have been afloat for some time past and who has been a very heavy bear operator at times for several years says: "The failure of Wm. Heath &

Co., is mainly due to my operations in the stock market. I supposed the firm was strong enough to carry me through and up to 10 o'clock this morning I had no idea of their failure. I am now unfortunately placed where I cannot pay what I owe for the present. I have been short of the market, believing the advance to be unwarranted. I shall make an assignment."

William Heath & Co. have just made an assignment to A. R. McCanness, manager of their office, without preference. It is stated at the office of the firm that contracts for about 100,000 shares of stock are outstanding on the exchange.

Henry M. Smith has been on Wall street since 1877. He owes Heath & Co. $1,000,000 and they owe their creditors that amount. The difference to Wall street will be about $100,000.

Smith is also responsible for the failure of Suttler & Co., having owed them about $250,000. It is the opinion of some that Smith's failure was brought about by Wm. H. Vanderbilt who advanced the market in order to break Smith as a punishment for the betrayal of W. K. Vanderbilt when they were operating together.

U. S. GRANT.

Logan's Eulogy on the Dead General.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

WASHINGTON, October 1.—Services in memory of General Grant were held here this evening, under auspices of the local commandery of the G. A. R. in the Metropolitan church, at which General Grant was a regular attendant. During his presidential term. The auditorium which is the largest in the city, was crowded. Funeral chimes were rung from 7 to 8 o'clock and were followed by an organ voluntary by Dr. J. W. Bishop. A notable feature of the services was the chanting and singing of war songs by the St. Cecilia ladies' quartette. The meeting was called to order by Department Commander M. M. Brooks and after prayer by Dr. Huntly, the present pastor of the church, General John A. Logan, the orator of the occasion, was introduced and warmly welcomed with clapping of hands, by the audience. The speech was frequently interrupted by the plaudits of the audience.

WASHINGTON, October 1.—General Logan's address embodied a recital from the standpoint of a personal observer, of the history of General Grant. He began with his own first meeting with Grant, at Springfield, Illinois, where Grant was assisting the governor of his state to organize volunteers, under the first call of President Lincoln, and touched briefly with little elaboration or comment upon the steps in the upward path of the subject of his eulogy. He alluded to the "jealousy and littleness" of Gen. Halleck, when Grant's superior, in keeping him almost a prisoner at Ft. Henry; to Halleck's dilatory movements against Corinth; to his disregard of advice and information that the enemy was escaping, and to the fruitless outcome of the campaign, the effect of which, however, was to restore Grant to the command of his old army of the Tennessee. He described the failures of Grant's first movements against Vicksburg, threatening a loss of confidence on the part of the people and resulting in clamors for his removal. The president's confidence, he said, was, however, unshaken and he determined to trust Grant a little longer. Grant's next plan, the speaker said, was recognized by the military authorities of the country as wholly unimpaired and dangerous. They believed it was military suicide and against all science of war. It was a movement, however, full of audacity and in its results showed the genius of the man who planned it. This was the campaign which resulted in the fall of Vicksburg. Halleck had directed Grant to leave Vicksburg and move down to Port Hudson and assist Banks. Banks being Grant's superior, would thus have been in command of the combined forces. Halleck suggested that after Port Hudson should fall, Vicksburg should be assailed. Halleck's letter came to late; five battles had been fought, Grant was already moving on Vicksburg, Pemberton was driven within the walls and locked up with only sixty days rations. On the fourth of July, 1863, the long and bloody siege came to its termination and Grant, at the head of his victorious army, entered the city and placed the old flag upon the court house. It was the largest capture of men and munitions of war ever made in any modern war up to that time. In the campaign the enemy's killed, wounded and captured numbered more than Grant's entire active force. Port Hudson at once surrendered and the backbone of the rebellion was broken. The orator touched upon the withdrawal of Rosecrans within the lines of Chattanooga, where he was cooped up with Bragg in possession of his communications. General Rosecrans was encircled and apparently in a position where he must sooner or later surrender, for want of supplies. Grant was ordered by the president to take command of that department and his first act was to assign Thomas to command in the place of Rosecrans. Chattanooga was subsequently relieved by Grant and the battles and victories of Lookout Mountain and Mission Ridge followed. Having defeated Bragg and driven him from his stronghold, Grant now commenced maturing plans for a great final campaign. His idea was to move to Chattanooga, Atlanta and thence to Mobile, and force Bragg in the direction of Savannah. In a letter written that winter, Grant said sharp fighting would occur in the spring and if the Union forces were successful, the war would be ended in a year. Grant was now made Lieutenant General and placed in command of the armies of the Republic. But one person, George Washington, ever held that position before. (Winfield Scott merely had the brevet). On the third day of March, 1864, he was ordered to Washington. His intention at that time was to return from Washington, and lead the armies of Sherman, Thomas and Schofield, to Atlanta. Unforeseen events changed his plans, and forced him to the east. His campaign was carried out to the letter, by others. Having assumed supreme command on March 17th, he at once proceeded to establish his headquarters in the field at Culpepper, Virginia. Heretofore the campaigns of the different armies had been conducted without any reference to each other. Grant proposed now that all his campaign should proceed with one common end in view. He would combine all his available western forces under Sherman, and those of the east and now the movements of the two great armies were toward a common centre. Sherman was to move against Johnston and hammer and pound and follow him until he was destroyed, captured or driven back to Richmond, or crushed between the two great armies. Meade was to advance upon Lee and strike him wherever he could be found. The plan was carried out successfully. In its progress victories were achieved which saved the republic. The speaker described in a glowing tribute, Grant's successive movements in this campaign up to the close of the war.

General Logan, in speaking of Grant's last days said, "He was usually known as the silent man, but upon a subject that interested him he surprised the world by his terse epigrammatic, but eloquent speeches, so pregnant with meaning. His memory will linger lovingly in the heart of every loyal patriot. When he had fought the battle of the Wilderness and wrote to the president, 'I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer,' he infused into the people and his troops a part of his own tenacity and faith in final success. In a short speech to the committee who waited upon him informing him of his nomination, first made by the Republicans as their candidate for the presidency, he used the memorable words in his conclusion, 'Let us have peace.' These words fell upon the people with an electrical effect. His coolness, his perception, his aptness in using the right word in the right place and doing the right thing at the right time were at the bottom of his success as a civil magistrate; just as great a faculty of doing right thing at right time and place and sometimes in the most unexpected manner, was at the bottom of his military success.

The speaker described the subject of his eulogies as a man of great strength of intellect, remarkable common sense, coolness, self-possession and tenacity, a true friend to those whose friendship he gained, and the kindest and best of husbands and fathers. He stood by his friends and forgave his enemies. He fought not for glory but to serve his country. When criticised and censured, and the clouds of calumny hung about him, he stood with folded arms, amid the thunders witnessing the wrath of his enemies, but he spoke not in his own defense. Time has finally dispelled the clouds, and let in the sunshine of honest judgment. Then his heart was found as pure as the dew drops on the velvet rose. He believed in the justice of God and that sooner or later it would by some means guide him to live where justice would take the place of wrong and "man's inhumanity to man" be properly rebuked. "But," continued the speaker, "his race has been run. The great and good man went upon the mountain to die. The attention of the whole civilized world was directed to that spot. His glory was that not of his country alone, but of all the civilized races of men. When the news of his death went trembling over the wires to the uttermost parts of the earth, the people of every nation and tongue, stood with bowed heads. Grant had in life ascended to the topmost heights of mortal fame. The greatest renown was his. The glory of man's greatest achievements shone round and about him, and he stepped from his high pedestal on this earth into the presence of the Great White Throne, where he was crowned with that immortal glory that shineth on forever."

The services were concluded with the benediction and a concert of patriotic airs upon the bells.

Yesterday's Ball Game.

By Telegraph to THE SENTINEL.

CHICAGO, October 1.—The weather threatened rain this morning but has since turned cool and there is now a likelihood that the game set for this afternoon will not be postponed. The betting on the outcome of to-day's game is about even.

At 2:45 p. m. the sun broke forth and bids fair to make the day a good one. There are now about 5,000 people present at the ball game.

First inning, Chicago to the bat—Chicago, nothing; New York, nothing. Second inning—There are 10,000 people present.—Chicago 2; New York nothing.

Third inning—Chicago nothing; New York one. Batteries are McCormick and Kelly, Welch and Ewing.

The New York giants succumbed for the third time to-day, and practically lost their last chance for the championship.

In the second inning, Pfeiffer made a hit, and the bad errors by Ward and Gerhardt, let two runs in. O'Rourke made the first run for the visitors. In the next inning, on a bad passed ball, and Kelly's wild throw.

Chicago made two runs in the fourth inning, on a base on balls and a wild throw by Ward and Conner.

In the 6th inning Conner and Ewing reached first base out error and second and a passed ball and a sacrifice. The 7th and 8th innings resulted in blanks for both sides and the Chicago went to bat.

In the 8th, with the score 4 to 3, in their favor, Buras and McCormack made singles and scored on Dalrymple's drive to right field for two bases. Gore brought Dalrymple home by a base hit, and Gore went to third on a wild throw and scored on Kelly's bouncer to Gerhardt. This ended the run getting and the score stood 8 to 3 in favor of Chicago.

Thirty thousand people have witnessed the three games here this week.

The Collapsed Trust Company.

The needy unfortunates who tried to get their deposit out found that there was a poor show. So they became very miserable and complained, as it was natural for them to do. A collapsed Trust Company is bad. It is not half as bad as a collapsed stomach, worn out by dyspepsia and debility. For the weary and worn-out stomach, take Brown's Iron Bitters, the best preparation of iron ever made, and the prince of tonics. Mr. J. A. Hepburn, Des Moines, Iowa, says, "I found Brown's Iron Bitters excellent for indigestion and ill health." Buy of your druggist.

DYSPEPSIA

Is a dangerous as well as distressing complaint. It is caused by indigestion, and leads to the decay of the system, and prepares the way for rapid decline.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

Rev. J. H. Rosier, the honored pastor of the First Reformed Church, Baltimore, Md., says: "Having used Brown's Iron Bitters for Dyspepsia, indigestion, I take great pleasure in recommending it highly. Also consider it a splendid tonic and invigorator, and very strengthening." Genuine has above trade mark and crossed red lines on wrapper. "Take no other." Made only by S. W. Father, Mother, and Three Sisters Dead.
Mr. David Claypool, formerly Sergeant-at-Arms of the New Jersey Senate, and now Notary Public at Cedarville, Cumberland Co., N. J., makes the following startling statement: "My father, mother, and three sisters all died with consumption, and my lungs were so weak I raised blood. Nobody thought I could live. My work (ship-smithing) was very straining on me with my weak constitution, and I was rapidly going to the grave. While in this condition I commenced using Mischler's Herb Bitters, and it saved my life. Because it was so difficult to get it in this little place, and I had improved so much, I stopped taking it for a time, and the result is that I have commenced going rapidly down hill again. Somehow, Mischler's Herb Bitters gives appetite and strengthens and builds me up as nothing else does, and I must have a dozen bottles at once. Use this communication as you please, and if any one wants to be convinced of its truth, let them write me and I will make affidavit to it, for I owe my life to Mischler's Herb Bitters."
These are the almost invariable relief and cure of consumption, dysentery, diarrhoea, dyspepsia, indigestion, kidney and liver complaints, when Mischler's Herb Bitters is used, is that it contains simple, harmless, and yet powerful ingredients, that act on the blood, kidneys, and liver, and through them strengthen and invigorate the whole system. Purely vegetable in its composition; prepared by a regular physician; a standard medicinal preparation; endorsed by physicians and druggists. These are four strong points in favor of Mischler's Herb Bitters. Mischler's Herb Bitters is sold by all druggists. Price $1.00 per large bottle. 6 bottles for $5.00.
Ask your druggist for Mischler's Herb Bitters. If he does not keep it, do not take anything else, but send a postal card to Mischler's Herb Bitters Co., 226 Commerce Street, Philadelphia.

FRIDAY, OCT. 2, 1885.

THERE is one good trait in Bob Ingersoll's character, at least. That is the manner in which he upholds women. He very truthfully says that women are "ten times more faithful than men." He further says: "I never saw a man pursue his wife into the ditch and dust of degradation and take her in his arms. I never saw a man stand at the shore where she had been morally wrecked, waiting for the waves to bring back even her corpse to his arms; but I have seen woman do it. I have seen woman with her white arms lift man from the mire of degradation and hold him to her bosom as though he were an angel."

P. T. BAINUM makes the city of Philadelphia the following proposition over his own signature: "I will undertake and give bonds for the fulfillment of the contract, that, if the city of Philadelphia will sell selling liquor and give me as much as was expended here for liquor last year, I will pay all the city expenses; no person within her borders shall pay taxes, there shall be no insurance on property; a good dress suit shall be given to every poor boy, girl, man and woman, all educational expenses shall be paid; a barrel of flour shall be given to every worthy person, and I will clear a half million or a million dollars by the operation."

MISS BELVA LOCKWOOD is not quite so ridiculous as campaign caricatures made her. She might be forty, or she might be fifty. Her features are of the clear-cut Grecian, refined type; aquiline nose, straight forehead, overhanging a pair of sharp, penetrating eyes, a glance into which at once convinces one that the lady is endowed with more than ordinary brain power. Mantled over her forehead is a roll of handsome wavy gray hair that adds much to the natural beauty of her face. There is nothing in her outward appearance or expression that would lead a casual observer to guess that she belonged to that much-ridiculed class of women designated "strong-minded."

The drawing powers of the Sunday campaigning were utilized for a nefarious purpose by an enterprising but wicked man at Philadelphia recently. An announcement in the Sunday morning papers that a colored camp-meeting would be opened at a certain grove that day brought three or four hundred white excursionists, on the first boat, to "see the fun." The wicked man was there, and explained that the meeting had been postponed indefinitely. He had with him, however, a large quantity of beer and other spirituous refreshments, and these the crowd accepted—at the usual prices—as a substitute for the "fun" they had expected to have. They were not unhappy when they went home, and in spite of one disappointment, may go hunting for the camp-meeting again.

In constructing fine houses in eastern cities builders now pretty generally use mineral wool between the floors and ceilings. This fibrous metallic substance is produced by sending a blast of air or steam through a jet of molten slag when it flows from the furnace. Having sustained the heat of fused iron, it is non-combustible, and free from organic matter, so that it can not rot or harbor any vermin. It is completely sound-proof, and may be termed an absolute non-conductor of heat, for a layer one inch in thickness, says our informant, may fuse on one side, while the other will remain cool. These properties, combined with its extreme lightness, have, since its introduction a few years ago as a good building material, made it a great favorite with architects and builders, and it is now largely used as a sound and fire-proof filling between floors and partitions, and in attics to keep out heat and cold.

Nearly 800 workmen employed in the car shops at Pullman met last evening in Pinger's hall, Roseland, for the purpose of discussing the expected reduction of 10 per cent. in their wages.

At R. Parsons and Michael Schwab, Chicago socialists, were present and delivered their set speeches about the tyranny of capital, the rights and dignity of labor, etc. Their oratorical efforts were not received with favor by the audience, some of whom denounced the committee that arranged for the meeting for inviting Parsons and Schwab to attend. No action was taken looking to a strike in case the threatened reduction is enforced. Honest workmen are tiring of these socialistic chaps and professional strikers.

The Virginia Campaign.

By Telegraph to The Sentinel.

WASHINGTON, October 1.—A very large crowd left here to-night on the 6:25 train, to attend the Republican meeting at Alexandria. Among the passengers were John S. Wise, Republican candidate for governor of Virginia, who was to address the meeting and Jno. Ambler Smith, a commercial agent, of this city and formerly member of congress from the Richmond, Virginia, district. For some time past there has been a bitter feeling between these two gentlemen. They occupied adjoining seats in the smoking car and when about two miles from Alexandria, became involved in a wrangle. Smith called Wise a liar. He had no sooner spoken than he received a stinging blow in the mouth from Wise, that drew blood and knocked him down. Wise followed up the attack, but the crowd interfered and stopped the row. When Alexandria was reached, Wise went to the armory where the meeting was being held. The meeting was noisy from the start and when Wise appeared on the stage and began to speak, he was interrupted by the friends of Smith, who had assembled in great numbers, with all manner of insulting remarks and he was finally forced to leave the stage and hall, and the meeting broke up in disorder.

"I would rather be right than be president." This remark has become famous in history as the brave utterance of an American statesman. "I would rather have Mischler's Herb Bitters in my house than any other remedy," is what Col. Frank C. Lane, of Kansas City, wrote. And no wonder. His wife was given up as incurable by two eminent physicians. There was a gradual wasting away of her system, and the doctors said there was no chance of her to rally. Mischler's Herb Bitters was finally resorted to; an improvement was at once noticeable, and the great tonic effect of the medicine soon wrought a perfect cure.

CANCER OF TONGUE!

A Case Resembling that of Gen. Grant.

Some ten years ago I had a scrofulous sore on my right hand which gave me great trouble, and under the old time treatment was healed up, and I supposed I was well. I found, however, it had only been driven into the system by the use of potash and mercury and in March, 1882, it broke out in my throat, and concentrated in what some of the doctors denominated cancer. I was placed under treatment for this disease. Some six or seven of the best physicians of the country had me at different times under their charge, among them three specialists in this line, but after another would exhaust their skill and drop me, for I grew worse continually. The cancer had eaten through my cheek, destroying the root of my mouth and upper lip, then attacked my tongue, palate and lower lip, destroying the palate and under lip entirely and half my tongue, eating out to the top of my left cheek bone and up to the left eye. From a hearty, robust man of 150 pounds, I was reduced to a mere frame of 100 pounds, I was almost unable to turn myself in bed. I could not eat any solid food, but subsisted on liquids and my tongue was so far gone I could not talk. The anguish of mind and the horrible sufferings of body which I experienced never can be revealed. Given up by physicians to die, with no hope of recovery upon the part of friends who sat around my bedside expecting every moment to be my last; in fact, my husband would place his hand on me every now and then to see whether I was alive or not, and at one time all decided that life was extinct, and my death was reported all over the country.

Such was my wretched and helpless condition the first of last October (1884), when my friends commenced giving me Swift's Specific. In less than a month, the eating places stopped and healing commenced, and the fearful ulcer in my cheek has been closed and firmly knitted together. A progress of a new under lip is progressing finely, and the tongue which was almost destroyed is being recovered, and it seems that nature is supplying a new tongue. I can talk so that my friends can readily understand me, and can eat solid food again. I am able to walk about wherever I please without the assistance of anyone and have gained fifty pounds of flesh. All this under the blessing of a mercifully Heavenly Father, is due to Swift's Specific. I am a wonder and a marvel to all my friends, hundreds of whom have known my intense sufferings, and have visited me in my afflictions. While I am not entirely well, yet my gratitude is none the less devout, and I am confident that a perfect recovery is now in sight. If any doubt these facts, I would refer them to Hon. John H. Traylor, state senator of this district, who is my neighbor, Dr. T. S. Bradford, of LaGrange, Ga., or to any other persons living in the southern part of Tennessee.

The Daily Sentinel. 19th CENTURY NECROMANCY.

A Tilt Among the Seers, the Spirits and the Supernatural.

MODERN MARVELS WHICH ASTONISH

The World, the Flesh and the Remaining Party.

THE ANCIENT WITCH.

[Special New York Correspondence.]

No doubt many of our brethren will smile incredulously at the idea that in this, the nineteenth century, and in the United States, necromancy is to-day practiced as successfully, believed in as implicitly, and followed as blindly as ever it was in the good old days of Pagan Rome, or the sombre nights of the Witch of Endor, yet such is the case. We have to-day in New York sooth-sayers who can not only see the past, the present and the future, but also the witch above alluded to and go her one better. Locheil's famous wizard over whose prophetic sight rushed that celebrated blood red field, would have laid those few acres away without a murmur had the time been the present, and in lieu thereof would have materialized a demoralized army of spirits, and sweeping the air with hands which grasped tufts of hair and blood from open space at every stroke, might have informed the daring but terror-stricken Locheil that this army was the remnants of the clans of Cul-loden, taken somewhat in advance of death on the morrow, while the hair and blood were his, his only, plucked a trifle previous to the fray. If you doubt that this can be done, let us refer you to a strange and said to be dangerous woman, now located in New York City, known as Madame De B—, or

THE DAUGHTER OF LOIA MONTEZ. Among her own set this dread daughter of a famous mother is held in fear inspired awe, and we have heard many who have witnessed her necromancy say that under no circumstances would they venture to offend her, and not for their prospects of future peace would they allow her to cross the threshold of their homes. Indeed, so great is said to be her marvellous power over the imps of darkness who surround her that she holds in her dread hands the tangled threads of life and death and her mere wish, if offended with her auditors, is sufficient notice to her ghostly satellites, who henceforth dog their footsteps by day and keep sinister watch over their slumbers at night, ever casting their baleful influence about their victims, until maddened by the potent power for evil they commit some dreadful sin, or are doomed to cross the river Styx before their natural time.

THE SURGICAL OPERATION.

Her performances are said to be blood-curdling and terrible. She has only to sweep the air with her open hands and great tufts of human hair, matted with gore, fall out of vacant space before the eyes of her awe-stricken auditors, while sprays of blood fall in a miniature shower over and above her.

A VOUCHER FOR INCIDENT is that of a physician, known to us, who called to see her recently. She informed him, among other equally cheerful things, that a surgical operation was at that moment being performed in a London hospital, and that she would bring some of the wounded man's blood to him. Holding out an empty tea cup to him for examination, she then held it up in her open hands, and he stoutly swore that drop by drop he heard, though could not see the liquid fall, and when she again passed it to him it was half full of human gore. He left, and money could not hire him to return. Another vouched for story is given of her baleful power of foresight. It appears that she had been engaged for a private party of friends, who met in the parlors of a house on West Twenty-third street, near Seventh avenue. She arrived. Her auditors were present. Before much had been said, one of the gentlemen present, a Mr. C—, denounced her as a fraud. She told him in reply she saw a coffin at his feet, and ere the year had passed away, his only sister would be numbered with the dead. The young lady was not present—the gentleman had never met the sorceress before, she was unknown to all but one or two present, but she gave the absent sister's name to the assembled ladies and gentlemen. She likewise told the lady of the house an open casket yawned beside her, and that a relative would pass away before the year had died. The name was given to two ladies present, but not the lady of the house. It was of a young girl not present, healthy and well, not fourteen, the strange part of it was that ere the new year had been ushered in these two lives had indeed passed out. Then and not till then, was the name given to the lady by her friends. This is vouched for by responsible parties. Can the seers of antiquity surpass these things?

But to leave the horrible, and take up the better natured seers, the ASTROLOGERS, WHO READ THE STARS, and by the pale light of Luna, or the glimmer of the distant planets foretell the style of a spouse you will get, the fortune that awaits you in the future, (generally very future, indeed,) who talk of the three golden signs, leading off with Leo, to be born under any one of which insures happiness and prosperity, and also tell of the three signs of misfortune, headed by Scorpio, which if they, or any one preside over your nativity, doom you to a ceaseless life of misery and woe. That there are hundreds, aye, even thousands, who believe in these so-called rulers of earthly destinies and the important part played by the silent stars, one need but observe to be convinced. There is a certain Dr. St. L—, in the neighborhood of 4th street and Bowery, where out of sheer curiosity the writer and a friend called to consult the oracles, and learn our future fate. Upon entering the reception room, we were surprised to find no less than eight other seers after hidden knowledge, patiently, faithfully waiting their turn to appease fate and the stars by the deposit of half a dollar with their representative on earth, in return for which they doubtless received much good advice, and generally, to judge from their faces as they passed out of the inner sanctuary some comfort. Our turn came at last, and with some trepidation we ventured into the presence of the reader of the firmament. Upon entering, we were agreeably surprised at the absence of skeletons, snakes, vampires, owls and similar comforting things, as we had been piously raised to believe that these adjuncts were absolute necessities to the seers. A few books, a cheerful fire, and a rather mild looking man of some fifty years, without even the traditional grey beard and piercing black eye, completed the scene, and we felt quite at ease.

AS WE DID MEET HIM.

"At what hour of the day were you born?" "What hour—well—" "You were born about six o'clock in the morning. What year and month?" "1855—January." "What day of the month?" "Thirtieth." "You were born under Jupiter and Sagittarius, one of the three fortunate signs."

We felt grateful. "But Sagittarius was slightly tinged by Saturn." We immediately resolved to cut Saturn's acquaintance, although we had been intimate friends for many years, had in fact occupied adjoining rooms for several months. All was plain now, however, and dolls that wouldn't stay dressed, beams that would stay late, cross school marks, and unlucky glove bets on election were all traceable to Saturn's unfortunate visit to our house at my natal hour. "Saturn's influence had passed away ten years ago, however, and since then you have been under the care of Venus." We forgave Saturn. It was Venus we wanted to annihilate. She it was who had driven us well nigh distracted by the scrapes out of which Sagittarius had hard work to pull us. "But Venus' influence, too, has passed away, and for the next ten years Mercury will have you in charge." We inwardly offered up a prayer to Mercury not to be too hard upon us, and forgave Venus. "You will have a good fortune henceforth, and when Mercury turns you over to Jupiter—" Good Heavens! Were we to be fathered and mothered by all Olympus. "In ten years from now, you will live under his guidance through the balance of life, and will acquire fortune and fame, and will die at a good old age. Any questions to ask?" "Yes, about how old an age?" "About eighty-one or two." "Will any of my friends die soon?" "Yes, three, one in May, one in 1886, and a near one in 1887." "Good morning." And we passed out, feeling that the future lay before us like into an open Sanscrit book—somewhat mixed, but yet open. It was all plain now, and we fully appreciated the serenity which had prevailed the faces of those who had passed out before, and with inward rejoicings that both Saturn and Venus had forever left us, we drifted from Heaven back to the sad realities of earth in a Bowery Street car.

WAR MATERIAL.

The Commander of the Russian Corvette "Strelak."

Nicholas Harionovitch Skrydloff, the commander of the Russian corvette Strelak (the Russian word for archer and shooter), now lying in the Port of New York, is one of the bravest officers of the Russian Navy. He made his name known throughout Russia during the late war with Turkey, by taking a torpedo-boat and attacking a Turkish armor-clad man-of-war in broad daylight. That he did not succeed in blowing up the Turkish vessel was only due to the fact that both electric wires of the torpedo were severed by Turkish bullets. In this exploit Skrydloff, then a lieutenant, received four wounds, which confined him for months in the hospital. For his daring act the Czar granted to Skrydloff the St. George Cross, so much coveted by Russian military men.

On his recovery, Skrydloff was sent to the Black Sea, where he had in his charge a number of torpedo-boats. After the Turko-Russian war, on being promoted, he was sent to the Soudan to look after the Russian interests in Egypt.

When the Anglo-Russian difficulties arose, Skrydloff, with his corvette Strelak, was sent to America. It is popularly believed that his mission here is in case of war, to buy cruisers, arm them, and keep a sharp lookout for English merchant-ships.

Captain Skrydloff is forty years old, and is a bachelor. He belongs to a family of nobles of the Smolensk province. His father was also a naval officer. His mother is living in St. Petersburg.

A TIN POCKET.

Fortunes acquired by illicit distillation have given rise to a very curious taunt among the inhabitants of the north-west of Ireland. When it was intended to convey to any person in the strongest possible manner that his pride in his family circumstances was only that of an upstart, the common expression for this was, "Your grandmother was a Doherty, and wore a tin pocket." The origin of this saying was as follows: The northern part of the County of Donegal, particularly the district of Inishowen, is largely peopled by persons of the name of Doherty and O'Doherty. In past times one of the best means of smuggling poteens into Londonderry and other towns in the vicinity was by a tin flask carried by the women in their pockets. Hence the expression.

Auditor of State Rice will refuse to honor the $4,000 claim of W. H. Drapier for printing and binding the brier legislative reports of last session. The claim has been formally indorsed by Lieutenant Governor Manson, who signed the warrant, but Auditor Rice believes that the law does not authorize such an expenditure without concurrent action on the part of both houses. The question will probably have to be settled by the courts.

Inoculation as a preventive for scarlet fever is being successfully practiced in the east. The virus is procured from a horse which has been vaccinated with that taken from a human who has the disease. The process is similar to that practiced in vaccinating against small pox and is equally as effective. As a case of scarlet fever was recently reported here, it might be well for our physicians to investigate this matter and if inoculation is a preventive for this disease to at once put it in practice.

Magnificent Reception Tendered the Visiting Delegates Last Evening—The Session To-day.

The preliminary work of local christian workers bore its fruit last night in the very auspicious and magnificent reception tendered the delegates to the Indiana Young Men's Christian Association convention at the Princess rink, one of the finest halls in the west. The vast auditorium was packed, every available spot was occupied, and many could not be accommodated. It all evidenced spirit and interest in the noble christian work and was a high mark of appreciation for the people engaged in it. The Richmond male quartet opened the services with the anthem "Rejoice in the Lord." The First Presbyterian church choir rendered "Te Deum" and then Rev. J. K. Waltz, of the Berry street M. E. church, recited the 100th psalm, followed by Rev. A. S. Northrop, of the Baptist church, in a brilliant talk, The Baptist church choir gave another anthem and Rev. D. W. Moffat, of the First Presbyterian church, feelingly welcomed the visiting delegates on behalf of the united clergy and christian people. Rev. Mr. Hunt, of Indianapolis, replied for the strangers and did it nicely, recounting the work of the Y. M. C. A., and his appreciation of the welcome. The Haydn Quartet sang "To Arms," and responding to a hearty encore sang "Rose Bud and Birdie Sweet." Mayor Charles F. Muhler welcomed the christian workers to the Summit City, spoke of the honor their presence conferred on Fort Wayne, hoped for the success of their assembly labors and concluded: "I know that the good ladies and gentlemen of our city, under whose care you will be during your stay, will do all they can to make your visit a pleasant one, and for myself and in behalf of the citizens of Fort Wayne, I bid you once more a hearty welcome and tender you the hospitality of the city."

Mr. A. H. Polhaus welcomed for the R. Y. M. C. A., and Mr. G. W. Cobb, of Indianapolis responded. Mr. Biggs spoke for the Fort Wayne college Y. M. C. A., and Mr. Ogato, the Japanese student pleasantly replied. The Haydn quartet sweetly sang "Annie Laurie" and then Rev. Munhall, of Indianapolis, replied to the remarks of Mayor Muhler, paying the chief executive and the people he spoke for a nice compliment. He invited everybody to be sociable, get acquainted and make the occasion pleasant, agreeable and memorable. After some time in social chat 1,200 people sat to supper and thus closed a reception that Fort Wayne may feel proud of and the strangers can take it as evidence of the feeling and good will in which we receive them.

TO-DAY'S SESSION.

The first regular session of the convention was held this morning in the new Sabbath school room of the First Presbyterian church. Devotional exercises commenced promptly at 9 o'clock, with Secretary G. W. Cobb, of Indianapolis, in the chair. At the close of the exercises, Dr. L. W. Munhall, state secretary, in the absence of President Moore, called the meeting to order. In his remarks he spoke kindly of Fort Wayne and thought a city with 35,000 inhabitants ought to have a regular Y. M. C. A. The many saloons are enticing the young men into their clutches, for want of a better place to go.

Mr. G. S. Fisher was then elected temporary secretary. A committee on permanent organization was appointed, consisting of the following delegates: Rev. R. V. Hunter, G. C. Butterfield, J. L. Hector, R. Tobey, C. H. Newton, S. Carskaddon and E. C. Swearingen. This committee retired and organized by electing Rev. R. V. Hunter chairman and C. H. Newton secretary.

Dr. J. K. Jamison, of Rushville, was reported for permanent president and the following as vice presidents for the various districts:

First district—J. C. Smith, Indianapolis. Second district—Chas. F. Coffin, New Albany. Third district—C. H. McCaslin, Hanover college. Fourth district—N. W. Wright, Connersville. Fifth district—E. S. Philley, Fort Wayne. Sixth district—W. H. Barger, Elkhart. Seventh district—F. W. Brady, Purdue university. Eighth district—W. M. Nelson, De Pauw university. Ninth district—George G. Ramsdall, Vincennes. Secretary—O. H. Palmer, Indianapolis.

First assistant secretary—A. J. Arrick, Wabash college. Second assistant secretary—C. H. Newton, Fort Wayne.

A committee on order of business was appointed as follows: George W. Cobb and G. S. Fisher.

The subject was then discussed, "What Evangelistic Work Should We do." Mr. G. Cox read a paper by Rev. R. E. Neighbor, on the subject.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention was called to order promptly at 2 o'clock and devotional exercises conducted by J. L. Southcomb. The subject of the training class was then taken up by J. F. Hobbie, who handled the subject in a very handy and instructive manner. He was followed by many others.

The topic "Needs of Personal Work" was introduced by Chas. D. Meigs and was followed by a general discussion.

L. W. Munhall then took charge of the bible reading assigned him and after some miscellaneous business, the convention adjourned until 7:30 o'clock this evening, when it will be called to order in the Princess skating rink. It is thought that Dr. Munhall will do most of the talking this evening. He has a strong voice and can make the Princess ring with his power and eloquence.

"AT HOME."

Rt. Rev. Bishop Dwenger's Triumphant Arrival—Greeted by Thousands of His People.

THE SENTINEL predicted yesterday that Rt. Rev. Bishop Dwenger's reception would be the greatest ever witnessed in Fort Wayne, and so it was. It was more than a reception, more than an ovation—it was a triumph for the great prelate, fresh from his achievements at Rome. Bishop Dwenger came in a special train, tendered by Supt. C. D. Law, at precisely 7 o'clock. A banner stretched along the coaches read, "Welcome, Bishop." The engine was bedecked with flags and from the south depot to the Cathedral the various Catholic societies stood in open ranks to fall in line as the handsome Catholic Knights, the clergy and the reception committee preceded the carriage containing the Rt. Rev. Bishop Dwenger, Rt. Rev. Bishop Rademacher, Very Rev. Father Brammer, Rev. J. F. Lang and others. The street along the line of march was packed with people and no such crowd was ever assembled in Fort Wayne to greet an ecclesiastic. At the entrance to the Cathedral Mayor Muhler welcomed the bishop. Mr. Muhler's address was fraught with feeling and welcome and well did he say that no words from him could tell how much it meant and how glad his people were to see his familiar face. From the Cathedral pulpit the distinguished prelate replied and expressed his thanks for the friendship manifested for him. He was glad to come home, glad to see the people he loved and whom he always remembered in his prayers, closing with the papal blessing. The bishop is the picture of health and stood the hasty journey remarkably well.

This morning the children of the Sisters and Brothers schools called on Bishop Dwenger at Library hall, read to him a nice welcome address and tendered him appropriate floral gifts. The bishop blessed the little children and they ran on their way rejoicing.

There is no disease which takes a firmer grip on the system, when once it gains a foot hold, than neuralgia. The agony from it is at times unbearable, but it is a mistake to suppose that there is no remedy for it. St. Jacobs Oil has cured thousands of people who suffered so much from it that life was almost a burden to them.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

A Brakeman on the G. R. & L. Railroad Killed While Coupling Cars.

"Mathias Gasper, a brakeman on the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad, was killed while coupling cars at Wood Lake at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon," says the Grand Rapids Democrat. "The train was bound south and was due here at 4:15 p. m. In attempting to couple the cars at that place, he was crushed between the bumpers and lived only five minutes. His body was brought here on the five o'clock passenger train and was taken in charge by Undertaker Durfee and will be taken to Fort Wayne for interment. Mr. Gasper resided with his wife at 287 Sheldon street and has been in the employ of the railroad company for about ten years, first taking the position of line repairer, and latterly that of brakeman on the local freight. He was about thirty-six years of age, and leaves besides his wife a married sister, living here, named Mrs. Swift. He was a good electrician and a very popular young man. His wife is left in very comfortable circumstances." Mr. Gasper is a relative of George P. Gardon, the Pittsburg baggage master.

Appointment of Notaries.

The rules governing the appointment of notaries public, which have never been generally understood or strictly observed heretofore, have been clearly defined by Governor Grey in his rules for executive practice, and will hereafter be rightly enforced. They are as follows: "A person under twenty-one years of age will not be appointed a notary public. A person applying to be appointed and commissioned a notary public should state in his application that he does not hold an office under the United States or Indiana, or any banking institution. If he does not hold such an office as above stated, he should state in addition 'excepted' giving the name of his office or business. Commissions in renewal of an appointment will not be issued at the expiration of a term upon a former application and certificate. A new application and certificate must be presented as the basis of an appointment. Blank forms of application are furnished by the secretary of state, upon application."

The Nickel Plate Cutting Rates.

A meeting of the Central Passenger committee was held at Columbus today, for the purpose of devising means to avoid a threatened general demoralization growing out of a strained situation at Clyde, Ohio. The trouble all arises out of the fact that the Nickel Plate, while a sort of an honorary member, is not bound by the penalty clauses of the Central Committee agreement. Either the Nickel plate can come into the Central Passenger committee and subscribe to the penalty clause or the other roads can begin hostile proceedings all along the line of the Nickel Plate to the end that it may ultimately be driven into the fold.

DEATH!

Boiler Mud Drums Explode.

Terribly Scalding Some Fourteen Mill Hands.

Their Bodies Scattered About the Dilapidated Factory Charred and Burned.

FRIGHTFUL CASUALTY.

The Battery of a Mill Explodes With Force.

Perthuis, Oct. 2.—The battery of boilers in Clark & Co.'s solar iron works exploded this morning, shortly after three o'clock, injuring seventeen persons, three fatally.

The night turn had just been relieved by the day turn. The mud drum of the boilers had exploded and escaping steam scalded seventeen men. A closer investigation showed that of this number fourteen were badly burned and three fatally scalded. The names of the fatally injured are as follows:

Frank Martin,
James Cathe,
Frank Murray.

The injured were found lying in all positions, and some were so far away from the battery that it seemed impossible they could have been injured by the explosion. The interior of the finishing mill presented a terrible sight of desolation. The mud drum lay lengthwise under all six boilers. It was the end of this which blew out. The boilers were unscathed, two tilted back in the rear and the whole wall of masonry was moved outward. Large stacks of hoops were blown all over the mill and machines were upset. Mr. Powers, chief engineer, says the boiler and mud drum were inspected by the boiler insurance company two months ago and were then pronounced safe. He was certain they were all right when he left last night and could only account for the explosion on the ground that the iron in the mud drum was too weak to stand the pressure to which it was subjected.

Two of the victims of Cathe and Murray have died at the West Penn hospital. Three or four others are not expected to recover. The explosion was caused by the mud ending through the coating of the mud-drum.

THE WAR STICK.

Servia Gets the Land Grab Fever.

Nissa, Oct. 2.—A meeting of the Skupstina yesterday has resulted in Servia demanding an extension of territory. The populace are clamoring for the annexation of Macedonia. It is probable that owing to the large army which Servia has in the field she will speedily seize the contiguous territory, thus making more difficult the solution of the Balkan question.

RE-FAILURES.

New York Speculators go Under.

New York, Oct. 2. The firm of Wm. Heath & Co., composed of Wm. Heath, Charles E. Quincy and Thomas E. Davis, failed today. Mr. Heath has been a prominent person on Wall street for about twenty years. Mr. Henry M. Smith, about whom rumors of financial trouble have been about for some time past and who has been a very heavy bear operator at times for several years says: "The failure of Wm. Heath &

Co. is mainly due to my operations in the stock market. I supposed the firm was strong enough to carry me through and up to 10 o'clock this morning I had no idea of their failure. I am now unfortunately placed where I cannot pay what I owe for the present. I have been short of the market, believing the advance to be unwarranted. I shall make an assignment."

William Heath & Co. have just made an assignment to A. B. McManis, manager of their office, without preference. It is stated at the office of the firm that contracts for about 100,000 shares of stock are outstanding on the exchange.

Henry M. Smith has been on Wall street since 1877. He owes Heath & Co. $1,000,000 and they owe their creditors that amount. The difference to Wall street will be about $100,000.

Smith is also responsible for the failure of Suttler & Co., having owed them about $250,000. It is the opinion of some that Smith's failure was brought about by Wm. H. Vanderbilt who advanced the market in order to break Smith as a punishment for the betrayal of W. K. Vanderbilt when they were operating together.

U. S. GRANT.

Logan's Eulogy on the Dead General.

By Telegram to The Sentinel.

WASHINGTON, October 1.—Services in memory of General Grant were held here this evening, under auspices of the local commandery of the G. A. R. in the Metropolitan church, at which General Grant was a regular attendant, during his presidential term. The auditorium which is the largest in the city, was crowded. Funeral chimes were rung from 7 to 8 o'clock and were followed by an organ voluntary by Dr. J. W. Bishop. A notable feature of the services was the chanting and singing of war songs by the St. Cecilia ladies' quartette. The meeting was called to order by Department Commander M. M. Brooks and after prayer by Dr. Huntly, the present pastor of the church, General John A. Logan, the orator of the occasion, was introduced and warmly welcomed with clapping of hands, by the audience. The speech was frequently interrupted by the plaudits of the audience.

WASHINGTON, October 1.—General Logan's address embodied a recital from the standpoint of a personal observer, of the history of General Grant. He began with his own first meeting with Grant, at Springfield, Illinois, where Grant was assisting the governor of his state to organize volunteers, under the first call of President Lincoln, and touched briefly with little elaboration or comment upon the steps in the upward path of the subject of his eulogy. He alluded to the "jealousy and littleness" of Gen. Halleck, when Grant's superior, in keeping him almost a prisoner at Ft. Henry; to Halleck's dilatory movements against Corinth; to his disregard of advice and information that the enemy was escaping, and to the fruitless outcome of the campaign, the effect of which, however, was to restore Grant to the command of his old army of the Tennessee. He described the failures of Grant's first movements against Vicksburg, threatening a loss of confidence on the part of the people and resulting in clamors for his removal. The president's confidence, he said, was, however, unshaken and he determined to trust Grant a little longer. Grant's next plan, the speaker said, was recognized by the military authorities of the country as wholly unimpaired and dangerous. They believed it was military suicide and against all science of war. It was a movement, however, full of audacity and in its results showed the genius of the man who planned it. This was the campaign which resulted in the fall of Vicksburg. Halleck had directed Grant to leave Vicksburg and move down to Port Hudson and assist Banks. Banks being Grant's superior, would thus have been in command of the combined forces. Halleck suggested that after Port Hudson should fall, Vicksburg should be assailed. Halleck's letter came to late; five battles had been fought, Grant was already moving on Vicksburg, Pemberton was driven within the walls and locked up with only sixty days rations. On the fourth of July, 1863, the long and bloody siege came to its termination and Grant, at the head of his victorious army, entered the city and placed the old flag upon the court house. It was the largest capture of men and munitions of war ever made in any modern war up to that time. In the campaign the enemy's killed, wounded and captured numbered more than Grant's entire active force. Port Hudson at once surrendered and the backbone of the rebellion was broken. The orator touched upon the withdrawal of Rosecrans within the lines of Chattanooga, where he was coupled up with Bragg in possession of his communications. General Rosecrans was encircled and apparently in a position where he must sooner or later surrender, for want of supplies. Grant was ordered by the president to take command of that department and his first act was to assign Thomas to command in the place of Rosecrans. Chattanooga was subsequently relieved by Grant and the battles and victories of Lookout Mountain and Mission Ridge followed. Having defeated Bragg and driven him from his stronghold, Grant now commenced maturing plans for a great final campaign. His idea was to move to Chattanooga, Atlanta and thence to Mobile, and force Bragg in the direction of Savannah. In a letter written that winter, Grant said sharp fighting would occur in the spring and if the Union forces were successful, the war would be ended in a year. Grant was now made Lieutenant General and placed in command of the armies of the Republic. But one person, George Washington, ever held that position before. (Winfield Scott merely had the brevet.) On the third day of March, 1864, he was ordered to Washington. His intention at that time was to return from Washington, and lead the armies of Sherman, Thomas and Schofield, to Atlanta. Unforeseen events changed his plans, and forced him to the east. His campaign was carried out to the letter, by others. Having assumed supreme command on March 17th, he at once proceeded to establish his headquarters in the field at Culpepper, Virginia. Heretofore the campaigns of the different armies had been conducted with any reference to each other. Grant proposed now that all his campaign should proceed with one common end in view. He would combine all his available western forces under Sherman, and those of the east and now the movements of the two great armies were toward a common center. Sherman was to move against Johnston and hammer and pound and follow him until he was destroyed, captured or driven back to Richmond, or crushed between the two great armies. Meade was to advance upon Lee and strike him wherever he could be found. The plan was carried out successfully. In its progress victories were achieved which saved the republic. The speaker described in a glowing tribute, Grant's successive movements in this campaign up to the close of the war.

General Logan, in speaking of Grant's last days said, "He was usually known as the silent man, but upon a subject that interested him he surprised the world by his terse epigrammatic, but eloquent speeches, so pregnant with meaning. His memory will linger lovingly in the heart of every loyal patriot. When he had fought the battle of the Wilderness and wrote to the president, 'I propose to fight it out on this line if it takes all summer,' he infused into the people and his troops a part of his own tenacity and faith in final success. In a short speech to the committee who waited upon him informing him of his nomination, first made by the Republicans as their candidate for the presidency, he used the memorable words in his conclusion, 'Let us have peace.' These words fell upon the people with an electrical effect. His coolness, his perception, his aptness in using the right word in the right place and doing the right thing at the right time were at the bottom of his success as a civil magistrate; just as great a faculty of doing right thing at right time and place and sometimes in the most unexpected manner, was at the bottom of his military success.

The speaker described the subject of his eulogy as a man of great strength of intellect, remarkable common sense, coolness, self-possession and tenacity, a true friend to those whose friendship he gained, and the kindest and best of husbands and fathers. He stood by his friends and forgave his enemies. He fought not for glory but to serve his country. When criticized and censured, and the clouds of calumny hung about him, he stood with folded arms, amid the thunders witnessing the wrath of his enemies, but he spoke not in his own defense. Time has finally dispelled the clouds, and let in the sunshine of honest judgment. Then his heart was found as pure as the dew drops on the velvet rose. He believed in the justice of God and that sooner or later it would by some means guide him to live where justice would take the place of wrong and "man's inhumanity to man" be properly rebuked. "But," continued the speaker, "his race has been run. The great and good man went upon the mountain to die. The attention of the whole civilized world was directed to that spot. His glory was that not of his country alone, but of all the civilized races of men. When the news of his death went trembling over the wires to the uttermost parts of the earth, the people of every nation and tongue, stood with bowed heads. Grant had in life ascended to the topmost heights of mortal fame. The greatest renown was his. The glory of man's greatest achievements shone round and about him, and he stepped from his high pedestal on this earth into the presence of the Great White Throne, where he was crowned with that immortal glory that shineth on forever."

The services were concluded with the benediction and a concert of patriotic airs upon the bells.

Yesterday's Ball Game.

By Telegram to The Sentinel.

CHICAGO, October 1.—The weather threatened rain this morning but has since turned cool and there is now a likelihood that the game set for this afternoon will not be postponed. The betting on the outcome of to-day's game is about even.

At 2:45 p. m. the sun broke forth and bids fair to make the day a good one. There are now about 5,000 people present at the ball game.

First inning, Chicago to the bat—Chicago, nothing; New York, nothing.

Second inning—There are 10,000 people present.—Chicago 2; New York nothing.

Third inning—Chicago nothing; New York one. Batteries are McCormick and Kelly, Welch and Ewing.

The New York giants succumbed for the third time to day, and practically lost their last chance for the championship.

In the second inning, Pfeiffer made a hit, and the bad errors by Ward and Gerhardt, let two runs in. O'Rourke made the first run for the visitors. In the next inning, on a bad passed ball, and Kelly's wild throw.

Chicago made two runs in the fourth inning, on a base on balls and a wild throw by Ward and Connor.

In the 6th inning Connor and Ewing reached first base out error and second and a passed ball and a sacrifice. The 7th and 8th innings resulted in blanks for both sides and the Chicagoes went to bat.

In the 8th, with the score 1 to 3, in their favor, Burns and McCormick made singles and scored on Dalrymple's drive to right field for two bases. Gore brought Dalrymple home by a base hit, and Gore went to third on a wild throw and scored on Kelly's bouncer to Gerhardt. This ended the run getting and the score stood 8 to 3 in favor of Chicago.

Thirty thousand people have witnessed the three games here this week.

The virus is procured from a horse which has been vaccinated with that taken from a human who has the disease. The process is similar to that practiced in vaccinating against small pox and is equally as effective. The round trip fare from Indianapolis will be $20, good for ten days. Colonel Dudley is to deliver the oration on behalf of Indiana troops and Governor Gray that for the state. It is expected everything will be in readiness for the ceremonies on the 23d of October. The committee and all others will probably leave this city for the field on the 20th, but the exact date will be given hereafter. Col. C. A. Munson will, for the first time, accompany Governor Gray on his staff to Gettysburg, and Capt. Charley Reese, who is a delegate, will also go.

Magnificent Reception Tendered the Visiting Delegates Last Evening—The Session To-day.

The preliminary work of local christian workers bore its fruit last night in the very auspicious and magnificent reception tendered the delegates to the Indiana Young Men's Christian Association convention at the Princess rink, one of the finest halls in the west. The vast auditorium was packed, every available spot was occupied, and many could not be accommodated. It all evidenced spirit and interest in the noble christian work and was a high mark of appreciation for the people engaged in it. The Richmond male quartet opened the services with the anthem "Rejoice in the Lord." The First Presbyterian church choir rendered "Te Deum" and then Rev. J. K. Walz, of the Berry street M. E. church recited the 100th psalm, followed by Rev. A. S. Northrup, of the Baptist church, in a brilliant talk. The Baptist church choir gave another anthem and Rev. D. W. Moffat, of the First Presbyterian church, feelingly welcomed the visiting delegates on behalf of the united clergy and christian people. Rev. Mr. Hunt, of Indianapolis, replied for the strangers and did it nicely, recounting the work of the Y. M. C. A., and his appreciation of the welcome. The Haydn Quartet sang "To Arms," and responding to a hearty encore sang "Globe and Birdie Sweet." Mayor Charles F. Muhler welcomed the christian workers to the Summit City, spoke of the honor their presence conferred on Fort Wayne, hoped for the success of their assembly labors and concluded: "I know that the good ladies and gentlemen of our city, under whose care you will be during your stay, will do all they can to make your visit a pleasant one, and for myself and in behalf of the citizens of Fort Wayne, I bid you once more a hearty welcome and tender you the hospitality of the city."

Mr. A. H. Polhamus welcomed for the Y. M. C. A., and Mr. G. W. Cobb, of Indianapolis responded. Mr. Biggs spoke for the Fort Wayne college Y. M. C. A., and Mr. Ogata, the Japanese student pleasantly replied. The Haydn quartet sweetly sang "Annie Laurie" and then Rev. Munhall, of Indianapolis, replied to the remarks of Mayor Muhler, paying the chief executive and the people he spoke for a nice compliment. He invited everybody to be sociable, get acquainted and make the occasion pleasant, agreeable and memorable. After some time in social chat 1,200 people sat to supper and thus closed a reception that Fort Wayne may feel proud of and the strangers can take it as evidence of the feeling and good will in which we receive them.

TO-DAY'S SESSION.

The first regular session of the convention was held this morning in the new Sabbath school room of the First Presbyterian church. Devotional exercises commenced promptly at 9 o'clock, with Secretary G. W. Cobb, of Indianapolis, in the chair. At the close of the exercises, Dr. L. W. Munhall, state secretary, in the absence of President Moore, called the meeting to order. In his remarks he spoke kindly of Fort Wayne and thought a city with 35,000 inhabitants ought to have a regular Y. M. C. A. The many ladies are entering the young men into their clutches, for want of a better place to go.

Mr. G. S. Fisher was then elected temporary secretary. A committee on permanent organization was appointed, consisting of the following delegates: Rev. K. V. Hunter, G. C. Butterfield, J. L. Hector, R. Tohy, C. H. Newton, S. Carskaddon and E. C. Swearingen. This committee retired and organized by electing Rev. K. V. Hunter chairman and C. H. Newton secretary.

Dr. J. K. Jamison, of Rushville, was reported for permanent president and the following as vice presidents for the various districts:

First district—J. C. Smith, Indianapolis.

Second district—Chas. F. Coffin, New Albany.

Third district—C. H. McCaslin, Hanover college.

Fourth district—N. W. Wright, Connersville.

Fifth district—E. S. Plutley, Fort Wayne.

Sixth district—W. H. Barker, Elkhart.

Seventh district—F. W. Brady, Purdue university.

Eighth district—W. M. Nelson, De Pauw university.

Ninth district—George G. Ramsdell, Vincennes.

Secretary—O. H. Palmer, Indianapolis.

First assistant secretary—A. J. Arriek, Walsh college.

Second assistant secretary—C. H. Newton, Fort Wayne.

A committee on order of business was appointed as follows: George W. Cobb and G. S. Fisher.

The subject was then discussed, "What Evangelistic Work Should We Do." Mr. G. Cox read a paper by Rev. R. E. Neighbor, on the subject.

AT HOME.

Rev. Bishop Dwenger's Triumphant Arrival Greeted by Thousands of His People.

The convention was called to order promptly at 2 o'clock and devotional exercises conducted by J. L. Southworth. The subject of the training class was then taken up by J. F. Hobbie, who handled the subject in a very handy and instructive manner. He was followed by many others. The topic "Needs of Personal Work" was introduced by Chas. D. Meigs and was followed by a general discussion. J. W. Munhall then took charge of the bible reading assigned him and after some miscellaneous business, the convention adjourned until 7:30 o'clock this evening, when it will be called to order in the Princess skating rink. It is thought that Dr. Munhall will do most of the talking this evening. He has a strong voice and can make the Princess ring with his power and eloquence.

AT HOME.

Rev. Bishop Dwenger's Triumphant Arrival Greeted by Thousands of His People.

The Sentinel predicted yesterday that Rt. Rev. Bishop Dwenger's reception would be the greatest ever witnessed in Fort Wayne, and so it was. It was more than a reception, more than an oration—it was a triumph for the great prelate, fresh from his achievements at Rome. Bishop Dwenger came in a special train, tendered by Supl. C. D. Law, at precisely 7 o'clock. A banner stretched along the coaches read, "Welcome, Bishop." The engine was bedecked with flags and from the south depot to the Cathedral the various Catholic societies stood in open ranks to fall in line as the handsome Catholic Knights the clergy and the reception committee preceded the carriage containing the Rt. Rev. Bishop Dwenger, Rt. Rev. Bishop Rademacher, Very Rev. Father Brammer, Rev. J. F. Lang and others. The street along the line of march was packed with people and no such crowd was ever assembled in Fort Wayne to greet an ecclesiastic. At the entrance to the Cathedral Mayor Muhler welcomed the bishop. Mr. Muhler's address was fraught with feeling and welcome and well did he say that no words from him could tell how much it meant and how glad his people were to see his familiar face. From the Cathedral pulpit the distinguished prelate replied and expressed his thanks for the friendship manifested for him. He was glad to come home, glad to see the people he loved and whom he always remembered in his prayers, closing with the papal blessing. The bishop in the picture of health and stood the busy journey remarkably well.

This morning the children of the Sisters and Brothers schools called on Bishop Dwenger at library hall, read to him a nice welcome address and tendered him appropriate floral gifts. The bishop blessed the little children and they ran on their way rejoicing.

There is no disease which takes a firmer grip on the system, when once it gains a foothold, than neuralgia. The agony from it is at times unbearable, but it is a mistake to suppose that there is no remedy for it. St. Jacob's Oil has cured thousands of people who suffered as much from it that life was almost a burden to them.

That the sale of Hood's Sarsaparilla continues at such a rapidly increasing rate? It is—

1st. Because of the positive curative value of Hood's Sarsaparilla itself.

2d. Because of the conclusive evidence of remarkable cures effected by it, unsurpassed and seldom equaled by any other medicine. Send to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass., for book containing many statements of cures.

CRUSHED TO DEATH.

A Brakeman on the G. R. & I. Railroad Killed While Coupling Cars.

"Mathias Gaeper, a brakeman on the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad, was killed while coupling cars at Wood Lake at 1:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon," says the Grand Rapids Democrat. "The train was bound south and was due here at 4:15 p. m. In attempting to couple the cars at that place, he was crushed between the bumpers and lived only five minutes. His body was brought here on the five o'clock passenger train and was taken in charge by Undertaker Durfee and will be taken to Fort Wayne for interment. Mr. Gaeper resided with his wife at 287 Sheldon street and has been in the employ of the railroad company for about ten years, first taking the position of line repairer, and latterly that of brakeman on the local freight. He was about thirty-six years of age, and leaves besides his wife a married sister, living here, named Mrs. Swift. He was a good electrician and a very popular young man. His wife is left in very comfortable circumstances." Mr. Gaeper is a relative of George P. Gardon, the Pittsburgh baggage master.

Appointment of Notaries.

The rules governing the appointment of notaries public, which have never been generally understood or strictly observed heretofore, have been clearly defined by Governor Grey in his rules for executive practice, and will hereafter be rightly informed. They are as follows: "A person under twenty-one years of age will not be appointed a notary public. A person applying to be appointed and commissioned a notary public should state in his application that he does not hold an office under the United States or Indiana, or any banking institution. If he does not hold such an office as above stated, he should state in addition 'except ———,' giving the name of his office or business. Commissioners in renewal of an appointment will not be issued at the expiration of a term upon a former application and certificate. A new application and certificate must be presented as the basis of an appointment. Blank forms of application are furnished by the secretary of state, upon application."
